

Christophe Heintz

With a civil engineering diploma in chemistry from Brussels University, I started in a manufacturing environment, producing polypropylene at Total, in Feluy.

Moving closer to the customers in the supply chain, I followed by being technical account manager in the masterbatch business, at Ampacet, mainly driving colour projects for global end users in the rigid packaging segment.

Now, since 2015, I am market development manager at Jindal Films, leader in the bi-axially oriented polypropylene films used in flexible packaging and label businesses. As part of this function, I am also a key focal point within the company for sustainability related trends and developments.
